About Us

TPMA is a consulting and management firm based in Indianapolis, Indiana with extensive experience in research and planning projects for higher education, workforce development and economic development clients. From its founding in 1989, TPMA has followed a vision of incorporating workforce development and education advancement approaches into the mainstream of economic development strategy. From that guiding vision has grown a firm that is engaged in all aspects of economic development planning and human capital growth—one that brings a uniquely well-rounded and balanced approach to its work.
